Benefit of Attending: This series offers an extraordinarily unique opportunity for our attendees to pursue a conversation that explores both sustaining and new paradigms of leadership with each of these exceptional individuals. They are distinctively different in the backgrounds they represent, but the common thread connecting each to the other is their depth of commitment to significantly contribute in leadership and service to society and the world. Each is passionately driven and fervent in understanding and sustaining the value of those that support them equal to the causes and missions they collaboratively serve. In this there is an unspoken reverence they exhibit in sharing their experiences, their knowledge, and their wisdom with humility in a framework of dialog and conversation.

Navigating Leadership Speaker Line-up: The impressive line-up of leaders instructing the Navigating Leadership Series 2013 embodies the relevant characteristics at the forefront of informing this all-encompassing transition of the leadership paradigm underway in our "Changed World" of government and society. Each leader presenting is driven by deeply rooted philosophies that were premised from childhood forward, that have stood the test of time, maturing across their life experience to guide their mission and purpose, their career objectives in leadership and service and in the context of mentoring (by example and deed) those they lead and serve beside.

Everyone is a Leader? Yes or No? When we define leadership traditionally as "someone with a position, in charge of a group of people in an organization", the answer would be "no". But when we shift our perception of leadership to align with the social world of today, it opens up an entirely new perspective and paradigm of leadership for everyone. Increasingly, those tasked with leadership see it as an interdependent 360 degree proposition – "where the whole is greater than the sum of its parts." In some of us leadership is inherent to our nature, and in others it is situational to our circumstances, but… all of us carry the responsibility to do what we can—based upon our strengths.

The Conversations in Leadership Series is designed to explore that Leadership is less about "power" and more about influence. It is a calling for each of us to stand up and contribute our personal best. It's about becoming the person we were meant to be, of breaking down the barriers that limit us; it's about challenging our fears to take the next step and the one after that. It is less where we are in the hierarchy and more about disposition, choice, action and follow-through in the area of our strengths. It has less to do with how others define us and more to do with the perspective from which we view ourselves, our life and equally how we take action from where we stand. "A certainty of a virtual society is that each of us can become more visible – meaning that the acceleration of technology can create transparent playing fields where we can be seen for the contributions we make." To "frame" each Conversation in Leadership, the workshop will open with the "back story" of those presenting; e.g., their background and journey, insights and philosophies (their driving motivational force to serve), their approach to leadership, their challenges and opportunities, etc. With this snapshot in place the collaborative forum will open for the involvement of all attending.

May 8, 2013
Conversations in Leadership

2012 NAVIGATING LEADERSHIP AGENCY HONOREE: Office of the Inspector General
Robert A. Barton
Inspector General

Howard L. Schwartz, Chief Deputy Director
California Department of Human Resources (Cal-HR)

Howard Schwartz has been a member of the California State Bar since 1982. His first law job was with the California Public Employment Relations Board.

In 1984 Mr. Schwartz spent one year in private practice with the firm of Beeson, Tayer and Bodine. He then accepted a job with the California State Employees' Association, where he worked until 1999.

In 1999 Schwartz was appointed by then Governor Gray Davis as chief counsel for the California Department of Personnel Administration. He held that position until November 2003.

From late 2003 until January 2011 he served as Senior Staff Counsel with the California Public Employees' Retirement System (CalPERS). His primary assignment was to advise the CalPERS Health Benefits Division and interact on behalf of the health plans that provide coverage to State and public agency employees, retirees and their families. In February 2011, Governor Brown appointed Howard chief deputy director for the California Department of Human Resources where he currently serves.

Mr. Schwartz received a B.A. in History, graduating with honors from the University of California, Davis. He then attended the University of Oregon, School of Law where he received his J.D.

On November 8, 2012, Howard Schwartz received the prestigious Individual Award of Leadership Excellence by the Asian Pacific State Employees Association (APSEA) at the Navigating Leadership Challenges and EEO in a Changed World Event. Representing the Governor's Office, Secretary Marty Morgenstern, California Labor and Workforce Development, presented this award to Mr. Schwartz.

Howard Schwartz was born and raised in Los Angeles, California. He now lives in Sacramento, California, with his wife, Katrina, and their 12 year old son, Sam.

Robert A. Barton, Inspector General
Office of the Inspector General

Robert A. Barton was appointed to serve as Inspector General by Governor Brown on August 26, 2011. Prior to his appointment, Mr. Barton served, since 2005, as the senior assistant inspector general for the Central Region of California. Before this, he was a deputy district attorney in the Kern County District Attorney's Office from 1988-1999 and supervising deputy district attorney for gangs, prison crimes, juvenile crimes, and truancy prevention, from 2000-2005.

Mr. Barton began his public service with the Fresno County Sheriff's Department in 1984, while completing his Bachelor of Science Degree in Criminology at California State University, Fresno, summa cum laude. He attended law school at University of California, Davis, King Hall, graduating with American Jurisprudence awards in Contracts and Criminal Justice Administration. He holds a lifetime California Community College instructor credential in the field of law and has been an adjunct professor at Bakersfield College and California State University, Bakersfield.

The independent Office of the Inspector General is responsible for contemporaneous oversight of internal affairs investigations and the disciplinary process of the Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation (CDCR), and performs other statutorily required reviews of the state correctional system. In his capacity as Inspector General, Mr. Barton also serves as chairman of the California Rehabilitation Oversight Board (C-ROB), which reports to the state legislature on the progress made by the CDCR to provide effective rehabilitative programs to California's inmates and parolees.

On November 8, 2012, the Office of the Inspector General received the prestigious Agency Award of Leadership Excellence by the Asian Pacific State Employees Association (APSEA) at the Navigating Leadership Challenges and EEO in a Changed World Event. Representing the Governor's Office, Secretary Marty Morgenstern, California Labor and Workforce Development, presented this award to Mr. Barton.

Conversations in Leadership

Joseph Farrow
Commissioner
California Highway Patrol

November 13, 2013
Conversations in Leadership

Juney Lee
Chief Deputy Director
California Department of Rehabilitation

Joseph A. Farrow, Commissioner
California Highway Patrol

The California Highway Patrol (CHP) is one of the nation's largest law enforcement agencies. On March 1, 2008, then Governor Arnold Schwarzenegger appointed Joseph A. Farrow Commissioner of the CHP, and he was reappointed by Governor Jerry Brown in 2011. With a Department of more than 12,000 personnel, Commissioner Farrow commands the fifth largest law enforcement agency in the nation.

Commissioner Farrow entered the CHP Academy in 1979, and throughout his career has quickly promoted through the ranks. He is the first Japanese-American CHP Commissioner. Commissioner Farrow has demonstrated his commitment to higher learning by earning executive level certificates, graduating from several schools of learning to include his master's degree in executive leadership from San Diego State University.

Commissioner Farrow has been recognized and endorsed for his innovative leadership approach in public administration. He was selected by the International Association of Chiefs of Police (IACP) as a recipient of the 2006 J. Stannard Baker Award for his sustained, career-spanning, and extraordinary initiative and creativity in developing, implementing, and improving traffic safety programs and technologies within the State of California, and for his willingness to promote nationally and internationally significant traffic safety issues. He is a member of the IACP, the California Peace Officers' Association, and the National Asian Peace Officers' Association. Commissioner Farrow's prestigious leadership earned him selection as current Chair of the IACP's Highway Safety Committee and Chair of the National Motor Vehicle Title Information System.

Juney Lee, Chief Deputy Director
Department of Rehabilitation

Juney Lee has the distinct honor of being an appointee under three governors. Ms. Lee was appointed by Governor Brown in November 2011 to her current position, as the Chief Deputy Director at the Department of Rehabilitation (DOR). This is her second stint as Chief Deputy Director after being appointed in February 2010 by Governor Schwarzenegger in that role at the Department of Child Support Services (DCSS). Ms. Lee was also appointed by Governor Davis in the role of Assistant Director of Operations and Accountability in 2002.

Ms. Lee has over a decade of executive leadership experience and over 30 years in public service. In addition to her appointed positions, she has held a variety of state positions including Deputy Director of Administration, manager of the DOR Fiscal Forecasting and Analysis Unit, Associate Budget Analyst, and Senior Vocational Rehabilitation Counselor.

Ms. Lee has a rare talent for forming dynamic and successful administrative leadership teams as well as creating and implementing innovative projects and efficiencies, resulting in long-lasting organizational improvements for the DOR and the DCSS. She also possesses strong personal and workplace leadership values for customer service, collaboration, communication, honesty and "doing what's right" in any given situation.

University of Southern California
Sol Price School of Public Policy in Sacramento

The Asian Pacific State Employees Association (APSEA) in collaboration with USC Sol Price School of Public Policy in Sacramento are pleased to announce its 2013 educational series: Conversations in Leadership.

Goals

To dent the "status quo" of traditional leadership training and expose new inroads of thought and discourse.

To allow the quality of the environment to form the quality of the outcome – e.g., the experiences of the instructor in collaboration with the attendee audience.

To nudge the boundaries of our minds in redefining how we embrace our leadership in our lives and the world we influence – personally, professionally and in community.

To incite "Aha" moments.

To provoke personal change and professional movement.

Who Should Attend

All levels of government leadership and staff – this conversation needs to be 360.

Policy makers – government, legislative and institutional.

Students and those embarking on careers in Government and/or Public Policy.

Non-Governmental Organization (NGO's) and private sector representatives, firms and individuals.
